NAVAL AND MILITARY.

It is reported the Admiralty has decided to attach a vessel to the China Squadron and that orders have been issued for the Humber to be transferred from the Mediterranean to the China station.

The strength of the Russian squadron in the Pacific will be greatly increased by the contemplated addition of the four armoured vessels sent to the commissioners for service on that station. Of these ships, one, the Czar Velikiy, is a new first-class battleship of 3,800 tons, more powerfully armed than any other vessel of ours in that part of the world; the Alexander II, and Catherina II, two more of the squadon, are also powerful battleships, the fourth being the coast-defense ironclad Ganjsk, also a new and powerful ship.

The Italian Government has ordered the construction of a new submarine boat of the Delfino type. She will be 50 ft. long and 4 ft. 4 in. broad; and she is to have an underwater speed of ten knots.

The first-class Russian cruiser Rossia, which has recently laid down, is an improved Kurik, 171 ft. 6 in. long, 56 ft. broad, and displacing 12,200 tons. She will have four vertical triple-expansion engines, fed by ten boilers, developing an aggregate horse-power of 17,000, and driving her at an extreme speed of twenty-two knots.

The radius of action at ten knots, will be 10,000 miles. Along four-fifths of her length the ship will have a 10 in. belt. The guns will be four of 8 in., sixteen of 6 in., six of 4.7 in., and sixteen small machine guns.

The French armoured Richepanse has been making some interesting experiments in the direction of sailing at sea. Recently, with the collier Antilles lashed alongside, she took in, while steaming at a speed of 6½ knots, 90 tons in three hours. The Tenferry transporter was used, and the results were held to be eminently satisfactory.

It is officially announced that Lord Roberts will receive Lord Wolseley on the termination of the latter's period of service as Commander of the Forces in Ireland, where Lord Roberts is much liked, on account not only of his brilliant services, but of his Irish parentage.

The partial mobilisation of the Sheriffs' command for the naval manoeuvres, or tactical exercises as they are called this year, took place yesterday morning, when twelve cruisers, gun-boats, and torpedo boats simultaneously hoisted the pennant. W.L.—The Forte, Charville, Tribune, Thebri, Apollon, Andromache, Alarm, Lamellar, Dragon, and Nos. 72, 73, and 74 torpedo boats. All are to be ready for sea by tonight. Mobilisation was effected with smoothness and rapidity at Portsmouth yesterday. At nine o'clock the pennants were hoisted. The fleet under orders for sea consists of the cruisers Fox, Iphigenie, Indefatigable, Latona, Naiad, and Isis; the torpedo destroyers Havoc, Decoy, Buster, Boxer, and Dasher, and five torpedo boats. The Dasher has been decked, her propeller having become bent, but the damage can be repaired in a few hours.

The trials of the Belleville boilers in the Sharpshooter, so far as they have gone, have been very satisfactory, not the slightest hitch of any kind having occurred with them. The pity is, says a naval correspondent, that the machinery of the Sharpshooter is so fragile a description that the hulls cannot be allowed to develop their full horse-power. Nevertheless, the ship steamed 15 knots for 65; hours, when the prescribed limit of 1,000 miles was reached.

SHIPPING.

A deputation representing fifty leading shipping firms in Liverpool, including the Cunard, White Star, and American Lines, had an interview with the Hon. G. N. Curzon, M.P., with the view of enlisting his sympathy and assistance as a member of the Government in matters affecting shipping. They also commented on the continental aspect made in recent Sessions upon the shipping interest, and urged, among other things, the necessity for abolishing the obnoxious impost levied under the name of light dues, the unfitness of the British Government in giving the mails in German steamers without placing them under Board of Trade regulations, and the desirability of excluding shipowners from any Employers' Liability Bill that may be introduced.

Mr. Curzon, in his reply, said, as the Unionists favored contracting out, they need not have any great alarm on that point in connection with any Employers' Liability Bill that may be introduced.

There is at least one pure democracy in the World: the democracy of Cricket, and by universal, undisputed suffrage its head is Grace. From my Lord who sits in the pavilion to the artisan who smokes his pipe in the alehouse, every man, whether he be a pagan or not, has a kind of "six" in his heart as you tumble down breathless in the crease. Is there anything in life comparable to that? Nothing at all. And it is for that, and all it means to us of young, unspiritual joy, that Mr. Grace stands today. That is the door through which we have taken his name into our affections. There is a kind of ball the bowler sometimes sends up without intending it, and there is a piece on the bat from which, when properly timed, it flies away in an effortless way, like a celestial thing without weight or dimensions: that is the sixer. Will none of the poets cease the too numerous lyrics to Love, and sing the song of the Sixer? On the whole he had better not try: he could not possibly realise the joy of it, and Grace stands also for that: an embodied Sixer.

Tales of heathen gods, with pretty theories of how they personify the ideas, efforts, and emotions of humanity. What one of them ever did as much for his particular department as Grace has done Cricket? Go down the list—no, we will not do that; for it would recall a phase of boyhood's effort by no means so pleasing as cricket. But generally, is there any one of them so amply fitted his requirements of a grateful cult as Grace? It is very evident that if we were pagans, and evolved our own deities, there would surely be a statue of Grace in every market-place, and a temple to his honour at St. John's Wood. Thither every year on Mayday troops of little-blundering English lads would bring their votive offerings with prayers for success in the coming season. But we are not pagans, and the talk was to make Mr. Grace a knight. If that is the best left to us, he deserves the honour, but it is to be feared the boys would neglect the title. To them he is Grace, nothing but Grace, always Grace. In every remotest corner of England runs the glad word, "Grace has made another hundred," and by its recipient you may know how much Grace stands for in English life.

There is at least one pure democracy in the World: the democracy of Cricket, and by universal, undisputed suffrage its head is Grace. From my Lord who sits in the pavilion to the artisan who smokes his pipe in the alehouse, every man, whether he be a pagan or not, has a kind of "six" in his heart as you tumble down breathless in the crease. Is there anything in life comparable to that? Nothing at all. And it is for that, and all it means to us of young, unspiritual joy, that Mr. Grace stands today. That is the door through which we have taken his name into our affections. There is a kind of ball the bowler sometimes sends up without intending it, and there is a piece on the bat from which, when properly timed, it flies away in an effortless way, like a celestial thing without weight or dimensions: that is the sixer. Will none of the poets cease the too numerous lyrics to Love, and sing the song of the Sixer? On the whole he had better not try: he could not possibly realise the joy of it, and Grace stands also for that: an embodied Sixer.

Tales of heathen gods, with pretty theories of how they personify the ideas, efforts, and emotions of humanity. What one of them ever did as much for his particular department as Grace has done Cricket? Go down the list—no, we will not do that; for it would recall a phase of boyhood's effort by no means so pleasing as cricket. But generally, is there any one of them so amply fitted his requirements of a grateful cult as Grace? It is very evident that if we were pagans, and evolved our own deities, there would surely be a statue of Grace in every market-place, and a temple to his honour at St. John's Wood. Thither every year on Mayday troops of little-blundering English lads would bring their votive offerings with prayers for success in the coming season. But we are not pagans, and the talk was to make Mr. Grace a knight. If that is the best left to us, he deserves the honour, but it is to be feared the boys would neglect the title. To them he is Grace, nothing but Grace, always Grace. In every remotest corner of England runs the glad word, "Grace has made another hundred," and by its recipient you may know how much Grace stands for in English life.

There is at least one pure democracy in the World: the democracy of Cricket, and by universal, undisputed suffrage its head is Grace. From my Lord who sits in the pavilion to the artisan who smokes his pipe in the alehouse, every man, whether he be a pagan or not, has a kind of "six" in his heart as you tumble down breathless in the crease. Is there anything in life comparable to that? Nothing at all. And it is for that, and all it means to us of young, unspiritual joy, that Mr. Grace stands today. # THE HONGKONG TELEGRAPH, SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1895.

CONSUMPTION, Wasting Diseases, and General Disability. Doctors disagree as to the relative value of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites; the one supplying strength and flesh—the others giving nerve power and acting as a tonic to the digestion and entire system. But in Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites the two are combined, and the effect is wonderful. Thousands who have derived no permanent benefit from other preparations have been cured by this. "Scott's Emulsion" is perfectly palatable, and is easily digested even by those who cannot tolerate plain Cod Liver Oil. Any Chemist can supply it.
